Farmers, Powers Firms Expect too Much From Rural Electrification

WASHINGTON—The President has been scanning a lot of candidates to head his Rural Electrification program, without much success.

It is one of the toughest jobs Relief hermits he has to face—chiefly because both the farmers and the power companies have their expectations sky-high.

The farmers are counting not only on free transmission lines being run into their homes plus free lighting fixtures, but many of them also are counting on taking over the lines after the Government erects them, then charging the farmer their own set price.

Both interests are doomed to disappointment.

Farmers are going to have to pay for part of the construction of power lines either in cash or in labor; while the Government plans to curb the private companies, make them keep prices down.

How far these plans will be carried out remains to be seen. So far they have not got beyond a very nebulous stage. And the chances are the $100,000,000 for rural electrification will not be spent until after 1936.

Family Trait

President's granddaughter, Eleanor ("Stella") Dall, was lying on a cot during the rest period at school recently engaged in a pastime that attracted the teacher's attention.

She was sticking out her tongue, and curling it upward daintily.

The teacher approached her. "What on earth are you doing that for, Eleanor?" she said.

"I'm trying to touch the end of my nose with my tongue," she explained. "Mother can do it, and grandmother can do it, and grandfather can do it, and I'm practicing so I can do it, too."

Good Chance

The chances are good that despite the fact it was sent back to committee, the Bankhead billion-dollar farm tenant bill will come back for discussion this session.

Ordinarily, when a measure is returned to committee death is certain. But there is a very potent reason why the Tenant Bill will return.

Senate Democratic Floor Leader Joe Robinson comes up for re-election next year.

Huey's Favorites

The two men whom Huey Long privately admires most in the Cabinet are Secretary of State Hull and, strangely enough, Harold Ickes, the "Cinch Bug of Chicago."

"It's a wonder Cordell Hull stays in the Cabinet," says Huey. "He's so sincere most people won't pay any attention to him. I used to sit in the Senate and listen to him talk on tariffs when everyone else had left the floor. I wanted to learn."

"As for the Cinch Bug of Chicago, I think that's a swell name. But Ickes is all right. The President just makes him do all these things against me."

Sugar Check

One day last week, six gentlemen from Hawaii left town with a government check for $6,000,000 in their portfolio.

It represented the biggest crop benefit payment made by the government in a lump sum, and was paid to the trustees of the Hawaiian sugar growers.

Though both sides kept the

HOUSE MOVES TO BALLOT ON INCOME TAXES

Ward, Tax Chairman, Says Measure Would Raise $10,000,000

SENATE IS OPPOSED

Set May 16 as Date to Close Session

COLUMBUS, May 1.—With adjournment scheduled for May 16, the Ohio house of representatives today moved toward a vote on the Ward income tax bill, only major revenue raising measure to reach the floor during the present session.

It carries rates of one to seven per cent over and above the federal income tax and its author, Rep. P. E. Ward (R) Chardon, chairman of the House taxation committee, estimates its yield at $10,000,000 annually.

Collections from a state income tax could not, however, begin until 1937 which eliminates the measure as a possible source of revenue for the $6,000,000 needed to pay Ohio old age pensions during the last six months of 1935.

Passage Doubtful

Ward was optimistic about his bill's chance for adoption by the lower house, but he conceded that Senate opposition to any new taxes at this time and particularly to an income levy, is so pronounced that final passage of the measure at this session is highly improbable.

He has framed the bill so that state and school employees, who escape the federal income tax would be required to pay the state a sum equal to their combined federal exemption and the normal state levy.

In adoption a sine die adjournment resolution offered by the Democratic floor leader, Rep. Frank Uible, Cleveland, the House agreed to end actual sessions on May 16, but after a week's recess, a skeleton session will be held on May 23 for the signing of bills.

If the Senate concurs in the Uible resolution as anticipated, May 23 will mark the end of sessions until the first special session which Governor Davey already has promised to call next Fall.

The commission spent considerable time in its meeting preparing questions for persons taking the examination next week for eligible lists. So far applications have been received for police chief, policeman and fireman but no one has taken an application for the fire chief's examination.

It is believed between 12 and 15 persons will take the examination.

Silk-Mill Watchman Arrested for Threatening Aviator's Life

FOUND TO BE ALIEN

Believe Writer Subject to "Brainstorms"

FATERTON, N. J., May 1.—Philip Martin, 46, of Clifton, N. J., a silk-mill watchman, was arrested today charged with sending letters allegedly threatening the life of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Mystery of two threatening letters was cleared up, according to police, by the arrest of Martin who said they regarded Martin as irresponsible and subject to "brainstorms" which followed a black-jack attack by burglars he fought off in a mill holdup several years ago.

German and Alien

Police said Martin is German and an alien. They added his wife informed them Martin had brooded over the Lindbergh case and that the Hauptmann trial had become almost a mania with him.

Incoherent and, in certain phrases, unprintable, the letters had one point in common, police said. They contained this warning: "This is from John. This is not a ransom note. This is a killing note. I'm going to take the law in my hands. I'll kill Lindy and kill myself."

One letter was sent to local police. The other, for some unexplained reason, went to the warden of Sing Sing prison.

Although the letters obviously were the work of a mentally confused person, police said, Detective Newman Stone of the local police and Detective Sergeant E. A. Haussing of the state police were assigned to the case because

CONSERVANCY GIVEN CHANCE

Chief of Army Engineers To Review More Recent Survey Statistics.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Ohio's Scioto-Sandusky conservancy project, recently termed by U. S. army engineers to be economically unwarranted, was given another chance today. Rep. William L. Fiesinger (D), of Sandusky, O., revealed.

Gen. E. M. Markham, chief of U. S. army engineers, will review the huge Ohio water conservation program in the light of more recent information, Fiesinger declared.

The new information includes reports filed with the army engineers' board by engineers retained by the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy board which will probably overcome objectionable features of the project, Fiesinger explained.

Gen. George B. Pillsbury, assistant chief of engineers, declared that the army corps would be glad to give the new data a cursory study and if public works funds are available soon, the engineers will be able to make a comprehensive study of all the material available on the project.

Proponents of the Scioto-Sandusky project were not disturbed by the statements of army engineers that the program appeared to be "economically unwarranted," because, they pointed out, most of the data which led to this decision, was obtained several years ago in connection with a proposal to construct a canal from the Ohio river at Portsmouth to Lake Erie at Sandusky.

CROPS UNHURT BY COLD WAVE

Clouds Prevent Frost From Settling in Greater Part of State.

COLUMBUS, May 1.—Fruit crops in Ohio escaped from any severe damage because of the extreme cold weather during the night, Weatherman W. H. Alexander reported here today.

Although temperatures dropped as low as 30 degrees, clouds prevented a heavy frost from settling, he said.

At Norwalk, Ashland and Napoleon but Alexander expressed belief that it had caused little if any damage.

The mercury at Norwalk dropped to 29 degrees and it was 31 degrees at both Ashland and Napoleon. Temperatures in other cities ranged upward to about 40 degrees.

Alexander forecast warmer and unsettled weather with rain for the next 24 hours.

U. S. ACTS IN AUTOSTRIKES

McGrady in Ohio as Thousands More Workers Leave Factory Jobs.

By International News Service.

The United States government, through Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, today moved to halt unrest in the automobile industry which has resulted in strikes at two Chevrolet plants, the shutting down of the Fisher Body Co. plant at Cleveland, and which threatens to tie up the entire General Motors Corp. system.

McGrady was sent to Detroit by airplane from Washington by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. Reports that he was to confer with W. S. Knudson, executive vice president of General Motors, could not be confirmed. Company spokesmen said they had no advance knowledge of McGrady's plans.

The total number of workers affected by the strike which began with the walkout at the Toledo, O., Chevrolet Motors Corp. plant nine days ago, was raised to 14,000 today when 540 members of the automobile workers federal union local at the Cleveland Bender Body Co. walked out on strike. A picket line was thrown around the plant.

Workers on strike at the Toledo and Norwalk, O., Chevrolet plants totaled 1,500, while 9,000 men and women were forced into idleness by the sudden closing of the Cleveland Fisher plant on orders from Detroit headquarters of the Fisher Body Corp.

FREED IN LONDON, FACES NEW TRIAL

Herbert Clark of Columbus, was today freed from the Pickaway-co jail by Sheriff Charles Radcliff, Tuesday, to face trial on charges of stealing a large amount of fence wire from T. K. Wilson, Darius-twp.

Clark was arrested by Sheriff Radcliff who investigated and cleared up a number of robberies but was turned over to Madison-co for trial in next of court.

A Madison-co jury could not reach a verdict in Clark's case after he denied his guilt. Clark has already been indicted for the theft and will probably be brought to trial as soon as the court is open.

Lewis White, fronton taxi driver, is now serving time in Mansfield after confessing his part in the theft series. It is possible White may be returned to testify against Clark.

TO INTRODUCE MEASURE FOR FIRST READING

Hour Limit to be Left Blank Until Definite Action is Taken

OFFICIALS DIFFER

Some for One Hour, Others Two Hours

An ordinance to establish a time limit for parking in the business district on Saturdays will be read for the first time in council tonight and with its reading may start a discussion that will keep the question alive for quite a while.

Solicitor Carl C. Leist was instructed at the last meeting of the city fathers to draw an ordinance to limit parking after the matter was discussed. The action was taken after Postmaster Hulso Hayes, representing the Rotary club, declared the parking situation on Saturday was becoming a menace.

Length of Time Question

The time limitation will be left vacant in the ordinance with that item to be the basis for most of the discussion. It is known that W. M. Reid, chairman of the council ordinance committee, is for a two-hour limit standing on the conviction that such an ordinance would reduce the demand for parked police, while Mayor W. B. Cady has declared his wish is that the limit be one hour.

Other officials have not declared their desires but are expected to make them known this evening if the ordinance is opened for discussion.

The Chamber of Commerce seems to be making progress in its plea to business men and their clerks to leave their automobiles at home on Saturday. The parking situation has been somewhat relieved by many of the merchants and their employees following the request. Some of the business men have declined to walk to work driving uptown and leaving their cars in the best available spaces the greater part of the day.

Other Topics Uncertain

It is not known what other questions will be broached in council.

The Universal Pipeline Co. informed council several weeks ago that work on its line would start about April 10 but councilmen nor city officials so far as is known have received word of any progress.

The gas ordinance question will probably be discussed as soon as the Universal's year of grace is ended. The ordinance granted the pipeline company, according to a city official, gives the Universal one year in which to take action toward furnishing the city with a gas supply at a much lower rate than is now being paid.

Ordinarily, when a measure is returned to committee death is certain. But there is a very potent reason why the Tenant Bill will return.

Senate Democratic Floor Leader Joe Robinson comes up for re-election next year.

The Arkansas faces a hard fight. Huey Long is after Joe's job; and the Kingfish has a large following among Arkansas's farm tenant and share-cropper population.

So it is a safe bet that Robinson will not allow the Bankhead bill to languish and gather mold in a committee pigeon-hole.

U. S. ACTS IN AUTOSTRIKES

McGrady in Ohio as Thousands More Workers Leave Factory Jobs.

By International News Service.

The United States government, through Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, today moved to halt unrest in the automobile industry which has resulted in strikes at two Chevrolet plants, the shutting down of the Fisher Body Co. plant at Cleveland, and which threatens to tie up the entire General Motors Corp. system.

McGrady was sent to Detroit by airplane from Washington by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. Reports that he was to confer with W. S. Knudson, executive vice president of General Motors, could not be confirmed. Company spokesmen said they had no advance knowledge of McGrady's plans.

The total number of workers affected by the strike which began with the walkout at the Toledo, O., Chevrolet Motors Corp. plant nine days ago, was raised to 14,000 today when 540 members of the automobile workers federal union local at the Cleveland Bender Body Co. walked out on strike. A picket line was thrown around the plant.

Workers on strike at the Toledo and Norwood, O., Chevrolet plants totaled 4,500 while 9,000 men and women were forced into idleness by the sudden closing of the Cleveland Fisher plant on orders from Detroit headquarters of the Fisher Body Corp.

FREED IN LONDON, FACES NEW TRIAL

Herbert Clark, of Columbus, was lodged in the Pickaway-c-o jail by Sheriff Charles Radcliff, Tuesday, to face trial on charges of stealing a large amount of fence wire from T. K. Wilson, Darby-tw-p.

Clark was arrested by Sheriff Radcliff who investigated and cleared up a number of robberies but was turned over to Madison-c-o for trial in theft of corn.

A Madison-c-o jury could not reach a verdict in Clark's case after he denied his guilt. Clark has already been indicted for the theft and will probably be brought to trial as soon as the court is open.

Lewis White, Ironton taxi driver, is now serving time in Mansfield after confessing his part in the theft series. It is possible White may be returned to testify against Clark.

Blank Until Definite
Action is Taken

OFFICIALS DIFFER

Some for One Hour,
Others Two Hours

An ordinance to establish a time limit for parking in the business district on Saturdays will be read for the first time in council tonight and with its reading may start a discussion that will keep the question alive for quite a while.

Solicitor Carl C. Leist was instructed at the last meeting of the city fathers to draw an ordinance to limit parking after the matter was discussed. The action was taken after Postmaster Hulise Hayes, representing the Rotary club, declared the parking situation on Saturday was becoming a menace.

Length of Time Question

The time limitation will be left vacant in the ordinance with that item to be the basis for most of the discussion. It is known that W. M. Reid, chairman of the council ordinance committee, is for a two-hour limit standing on the conviction that such an ordinance would reduce the demand for added police, while Mayor W. B. Cady has declared his wish is that the limit be one hour.

Other officials have not declared their desires but are expected to make them known this evening if the ordinance is opened for discussion.

The Chamber of Commerce seems to be making progress in its plea to business men and their clerks to leave their automobiles at home on Saturday. The parking situation has been somewhat relieved by many of the merchants and their employees following the request. Some of the business men have declined to walk to work driving uptown and leaving their cars in the best available spaces the greater part of the day.

Other Topics Uncertain

It is not known what other questions will be broached in council.

The Universal Pipeline Co. informed council several weeks ago that work on its line would start about April 10 but councilmen nor city officials so far as is known have received word of any progress.

The gas ordinance question will probably be discussed as soon as the Universal's year of grace is ended. The ordinance granted the pipeline company, according to a city official, gives the Universal one year in which to take action toward furnishing the city with a gas supply at a much lower rate than is now being paid.

ARMY DEVELOPS GIANT BOMBER FOR COAST DEFENSE

NEED WEAPON LEADERS SAY

Would Travel 3,000 Miles At 225 Per Hour Carrying 2,500 Pound Explosives.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—A giant bombing airplane, capable of flying 3,000 miles without a stop at a speed of 225 miles an hour and carrying 2,500 pounds of explosives, is being developed by the Douglas Aircraft Corp., of Santa Monica, Cal., for the army air corps.

If tests with this battleship of the air prove successful, the war department expects it to become the future backbone of America's military aviation. It will be to the air corps what the battleship is to the navy.

It represents the fastest and most powerful bomber of its type known to exist.

Chief Defense Weapon

The air corps high command has come to the conclusion that this type of bomber will form the chief aerial weapon of defense for the United States in the future. The belief prevails that in event of a war with the United States, the enemy would seek to establish aircraft carriers and supply ships in scattered areas in the ocean anywhere from 500 to 1,000 miles from American shores.

These mobile bases would be used as centers of operations for aerial raids upon vital areas in this country. They would be defended by their own naval vessels from attack by American warships. The only way to reach them, in the opinion of army air chiefs, would be with powerful bombers.

To meet this danger, the corps officers believe America's aerial defense frontiers must extend at least 1,000 miles out into the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. They are convinced this can be accomplished only by the maintenance of a fleet of powerful bombers with a flying radius of between 2,000 and 3,000 miles.

Destroy at Once

These bombers would be held in readiness to roar out over the ocean soon as word was received as to the approximate location of the enemy aircraft bases. The object would be to reach and destroy those aircraft carriers and supply ships before they had an opportunity to launch an attack on the American shores.

RAZE LANDMARK

The Seymour Wrecking Co., of Columbus, wreckers of the Smith building on W. Main-st., is busily engaged taking down the building at Water and Court-sts., recently vacated by the Circleville Tire & Repair Co. The black walnut timber and the hand forged nails found in this building are mute evidence that a part of this building at least, was constructed during the very early history of Circleville.

Lyman Bell, who owns the property, says he will build a modern gasoline and service station with complete service for automobiles and trucks.

At Hamilton & Ryan

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grumpy and no good for anything. What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile does not digest it. What is the bile? It is the most vital digestive force in our body. Unless a part of it is flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and 25% of our food decays in our 25 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every 24 hours.

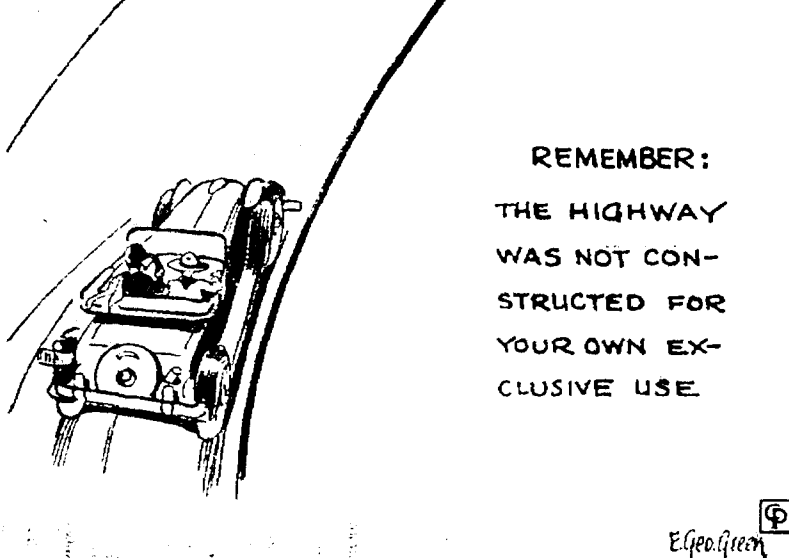

When our friends smell our bad breath (that we don't) and we feel like a whipped animal, don't let us be a stomach or take a laxative. Get the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile. But if "something" does not seem to be working, buy it. For it may be a natural (necessary) pill, which cleanses the bowels and sends the return flow of bile to the liver. Carter's Little Liver Pills will get what you need. Get it. Get it. Get it.

Hit Loan Firms

It carried by a vote of 74 to 32 in the face of arguments from chattel loan spokesmen who warned that to reduce the maximum interest rate on small loans below 3 per cent would cause an exodus of the loan companies, leaving the small borrower at the mercy of illegal enterprises charging as high as 240 per cent a year.

SWISS AND DIMITY

Swiss and dimity are closely related to the plain-weave fabrics discussed last week.

Dimity is called a rib weave, containing a rib which is frequently due to the introduction of a heavy yarn at intervals. This heavy yarn decreases the strength of the fabric. Whenever heavy or coarse yarns and light or fine yarns are woven together it is to be expected that there will be cutting of fine yarns along the line of the heavy yarn. Manufacturers have decreased this wear by using as the heavy yarns a combination of fine yarns.

Swiss is a background of plain weave with a structural figure design usually in dots. If these dots are secured firmly and tied, the resulting fabric is strong. The dots give interest and pattern to the fabric.

Marquise is another of the curtain materials with an especially interesting weave and it is more durable than the plain weaves. This fabric is made by the gauze weave.

Laces are made up on a foundation of net fabric construction. Netting is really a form of knotting either done by hand or machine. The yarns are tightly twisted and a firm, but stretchable product is the result.

Still another curtain material, made of linen fiber instead of cotton is theatrical gauze. It is a simple plain weave and gets its name because of the open spaces of the weaves which makes it a sheer fabric.

The linen fiber is much stronger than cotton. It is longer and stiffer. The fibers stick together, are spun into yarn easily, and make very strong yarns. As the fiber has luster, the yarns and fabrics have a pleasant degree of sheen.

SERVICES GROW

The tide rose high in the revival service at the United Brethren church last night. The audience showed a marked increase in attendance over that of the night before. Delegations and ministers from Columbus, Jackson, Portsmouth and other communities as well as from churches of Circleville were present. The pastor, effort to ascertain the degree to which increases in the agricultural purchasing power of the cotton belt is reflected in increased demand for factory goods produced in industrial states.

Periods compared were the year beginning July 1, 1932, and ending June 30, 1933, and the year beginning July 1, 1933, and ending June 30, 1934. This second period, according to AAA officials, covered a period when results of the recovery program had begun to be felt.

Ohio's shipments to the southeast, over the four roads, rose from 316,716,439 pounds to 471,633,148 pounds.

The study revealed that total carlot shipments from 16 north-eastern industrial states to the 10 states of the agricultural southeast increased 38 per cent, from 2,104,585,201 pounds to 20,920,887,439 pounds.

OHIO SHIPMENTS TO SOUTHEAST UP

Sales of Ohio manufactures to the agricultural southeast rose 48 per cent in one year, according to an analysis of waybills of four important railroads of the southeast recently completed by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

The AAA made the study in an matter extremely quiet, there was nothing phony about the deal.

More than a year ago, Hawaiian sugar growers sued the AAA for discrimination in fixing their sugar quota. Only 59,000 tons was involved. The main thing was that Hawaii, although a part of the United States, was ranked in the same category as the dependent possessions of Puerto Rico and the Philippines.

This the Hawaiians couldn't swallow.

So they sued in the District of Columbia Courts, lost, prepared to appeal to the Supreme Court. Then the AAA offered to settle. Settlement included a quota increase of 59,000 tons plus the release of processing taxes already paid by Hawaii.

These amounted to $6,000,000, the check finally paid last week. Controller General McCarl had held the check up for months and months. The Hawaiians wondered, for a while, if they would ever get it.

Merry-Go-Round

So seriously do fellow publishers take the candidacy of Frank Knox of The Chicago Daily News for President, that during the publishers' convention in New York wherever he moved became an impromptu "Knox Headquarters." To fellow publishers he expressed willingness to do anything possible to stop this "nutty New Deal." President Marvin, hard-boiled president of George Washington University, accused the Roosevelt Administration of bringing Communist agitators from New York to stir up trouble among Washington students. He refused to let three Congressmen address campus gatherings during the students' strike against war.

Rev. T. C. Harper, states that he has every reason to believe that within a very few nights the church will be packed to its capacity. He is expecting special delegations tonight and special music will be rendered.

The evangelist, the Rev. Dewey Whitwell of Nashville, Tennessee, spoke last evening on "The New Birth."

matter extremely quiet, there was nothing phoney about the deal.

More than a year ago, Hawaiian sugar growers sued the AAA for discrimination in fixing their sugar quota. Only 59,000 tons was involved. The main thing was that Hawaii, although a part of the United States, was ranked in the same category as the dependent possessions of Puerto Rico and the Philippines.

This the Hawaiians couldn't swallow.

So they sued in the District of Columbia Courts, lost, prepared to appeal to the Supreme Court. Then the AAA offered to settle. Settlement included a quota increase of 59,000 tons plus the release of processing taxes already paid by Hawaii.

These amounted to $6,000,000, the check finally paid last week. Controller General McCarl had held the check up for months and months. The Hawaiians wondered, for a while, if they would ever get it.

Merry-Go-Round

So seriously do fellow publishers take the candidacy of Frank Knox of The Chicago Daily News for President, that during the publishers' convention in New York wherever he moved became an impromptu "Knox Headquarters." To fellow publishers he expressed willingness to do anything possible to stop this "nutty New Deal." President Marlin, hard-boiled president of George Washington University, accused the Roosevelt Administration of bringing Communist agitators from New York to stir up trouble among Washington students. He refused to let three Congressmen address campus gatherings during the students' strike against war.

Rev. T. C. Harper, states that he has every reason to believe that within a very few nights the church will be packed to its capacity. He is expecting special delegations tonight and special music will be rendered.

GOOD PLACE FOR CHILDREN

EVERY community in the United States has its natural advantages. Instead of looking afar and envying some other settlement it would be far better for every town to look after its own opportunity and develop it. Circleville has no better opportunity for development than in providing a park or recreational center, plans for which are now in the making.

In many places the opportunity for development may be only the possibility of maintaining an excellent environment for the rearing of good families. A community which can boast that it is a good place where children may grow safely to manhood's estate has an asset far more valuable than any other, regardless of what hot-air boosters may say.

In Circleville, we can boast of such a community. Here our children have an ideal place in which to form their early and lasting impressions of good living. Here they are not subjected to the wild life that exists in many of the larger cities. Here they see a real community of interests, a place in which misfortune that grieves the average family find a responsive note of sympathy in almost every home.

This is a wonderful spirit. It is the very essence of co-operation and the highest form of social development, when properly expressed. The people of Circleville should do all they can to maintain it in its best form and to see that a proper pride encourages its future growth and expansion.

If you believe in Circleville as a good place to live, a community which provides for the development of youth, lend your support to the city park project.

MAY DAY

MAY DAY, once brought, and perhaps still brings in some places and to a chosen generation, the pleasant custom of hanging May baskets. These baskets, the products of long hours of patient child labor, were filled with violets and other woods flowers gathered from secret haunts of nature, and were hung, with bashful eagerness on the front doors of chosen playmates' homes. The custom was, in a way, a second Valentine time, and a prelude to more formal May Day fetes and pageants.

In bygone years our English ancestors held similar observance of the advent of the Flowery Month. Chaucer tells how, early on May Day, "Forth goth all the court, both most and least, to fetch the Mayes' tricks." And such a May Day fete seems to have been not at all unusual. Nature, long dead, had come back to life and beauty in Old England, and the populace, both high and low, turned out to celebrate, with a grateful sense of some divine goodness which so carefully guided the seasons in their round.

May Day, in this latitude, brings assurance that spring is here once more, rather than promise that it is close at hand, but we have not entirely put aside the ancient customs. The same thankfulness for a new season is in our hearts, and the same delight in newborn fragrance of first flowers. And we go forth, informally and under guise of week-end wanderers, to see again the beauties of the greening fields and know once more the breath of spring. But for all our informality we are May Day folk on celebration bent, as surely as those whom Chaucer saw on that way "to fetch the flowers fresh."

DOES YOUR MIND STOP?

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER, famous college president, said there is only a small minority of human beings who keep growing mentally after reaching the ages of 23 and 24. Which raises the question, as to what constitutes mental growth?

There are other kinds of growth than getting book knowledge. A person may read few books, and yet he may have so much experience in dealing with people that his judgment keeps growing better. He is growing mentally. His mind is better able to meet his own personal problems.

As respects intelligent citizenship, one must do some reading and thinking, or his mind will set fast in its old mould. He must form judgments about his government, local, state and national, or his opinions are just the same as those he held years ago. His stomach may be more active than ever, but his civil mind shows no sign of life.

There are growing indications that greater volume does not enhance the popularity of taxes.

A few faint sounds are heard leading to the belief that a year from now a mild presidential campaign will be under way.

Spring is one of the most precious of nature's gifts to man and is not to be judged by some of the poems which it inspires.

Conditions must be improving in the western farm belt. Several years ago the mortgage alone would have held any farm down.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. Ward Robinson, 315 S. Pickaway-st., won a prize of $200 offered by The Circleville Herald for the best original hymn commemorating the Post-World War Anniversary. Her contribution, entitled "Humbly and Reverently," was chosen from among 600 entries.

Ja-kon-ti-p's population was 1,009, according to census reports, a decrease of 90 in 10 years. One hundred twenty-five farms were enumerated.

Sixty-five out of town guests attended a tea given by Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the home of Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, W. Union-st.

15 YEARS AGO

Friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barnes, of the Maple Swamp, to celebrate the sixtieth birthday anniversary of Mr.

Barnes and the 77th anniversary of Mrs. Barnes.

The Circleville board of education employed teachers for the school year and fixed the minimum salary of grade teachers at $85 a month with a maximum of $110.

W. D. Myers, local grocer and baker, was elected dictator of Circleville Lodge No. 1597, Loyd Order of Moose.

25 YEARS AGO

The home of Prosecution Attorney C. A. Leist was burglarized, and $43 in cash was stolen. Editor Palmer's bloodhounds lost the trail at the Norfolk & Western railroad tracks near Beantown.

An anniversary meeting was held in the Evangelical church at Steutsville to celebrate the fortieth year in the ministry of the pastor, Rev. G. W. Miesse.

Robinson's circus and Al. Fields' minstrels appeared in Circleville on the same date, both playing to large audiences. The minstrel parade followed the circus parade through the streets.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

CHAPTER 30

"I've become a blotter for gypsy tears," Doug explained. "I have a permanent chill around my collar bone from having it cried on so often. No fooling, old man, I want a raise, for wear and tear on the frame. I have burst into tears on trying to keep up with the gypsy on horseback. I tell you, it's a riot! There she goes all dolled up in her correct English habit, riding bare-back like a circus Indian, and me hanging on for dear life to keep up with her. People stare at us like a slap-stick comedy. She's lost five derbies and a thousand hairpins, but she also lost that wan look." He eased his body into a chair and shook his finger at Stewart. "I used to think you had a little sense, but I was wrong. How come you imagined the kid could go the pace an old rounder like you run? Man, you're crazy! I suppose I'm just being mean back to normal for you to start all over again. Listen, Stewart, you love this kid. Did it ever occur to you that you might be ruining her life?"

"What's got into you all of a sudden? Joined the church or something?" Stewart was annoyed.

"Don't talk that way to me, man. I've seen you through too many affairs for you to put on a high hat now. I'm saying this and you're taking it, see? You're ruining that kid. You've sold her the idea that a gypsy is no good, less than mud, and you're trying to make her over into a pattern to suit you. Well, the thing you're doing—I could go into this technically. If I wanted—the thing you're doing is filling her full of complexes and repressions. You've taken a nice free happy kid and made a lady out of her when she was never meant to be anything but what she was. If you only knew it, she was worth a thousand times the thing you're trying to make her, but that's a masculine conceit of yours—you know, trying to improve on the Almighty. Penetrate? Or am I talking over your ability to comprehend? Now you lay off her a while and give her a chance to shake the cobwebs off the brain and the handcuffs off the mental that you've placed there." The wrath departed from his voice. "Gosh, man, you're a fool! There never was a girl like her!"

"And I'm supposed to take all this from you and like it, is that it? I haven't seen her for a week. She's preferred your company to mine. And what about this Willowby, has she seen him?"

"Labeled under the heading of jealousy. No. He's out of town."

"The girl continued to brush her hair. "Oh, now I can't be bothered with such a thing. You tell me about it!" "These women, you can't beat 'em!" Goldie sighed. "It's your contract for next season!" he said in the same tone in which the cock announces the dawn. The brush paused in mid air. "Next season?"

"Yes, next year's Follies. I got some of the best talent working them

"Cut out the funniness! How do you think I feel about this? She hears about that doggone gypsy camp and turns on me as if I'm the one who took her away. She lets her temper loose and won't have anything to do with me. I sit here and wonder what you two are doing. I'm left on the outside. I'm the one who's given her everything and yet the minute she doesn't feel like seeing me I can't even get near her. She won't talk to me, but she calls you up and the two of you go off to heaven knows where, and I've got dozens of people coming to me and tearing their hair because she's broken appointments and—oh, well, no use moaning to you! She knows darn well she can't go back. They wouldn't have her—that gypsy vengeance she worked so nicely might be worked a bit better from the other side. All I hope is that now they know where she is they don't come to New York and run a knife through her—He paused. "Good Lord, Doug, you don't suppose they'd do that?"

"You love her!"

"You fool, of course I love her! You come bursting in here like a hurricane telling me all the things I've thought of all week. If it will make you feel any better, I've already realized what a terrible fool I've been with her and I'm going to make it up now if I can."

"And I go into raptures! Doggone you, Stewart, every time I get going good with the kid and begin to hope again, you come along and bust it up. Kin I go along on the honey-moon?"

Then the scene changed to a few nights later, in Consuelo's dressing room, backstage.

Goldie came into the dressing room. Consuelo was at the make-up table. Stewart was lounging on the couch. The air was heavy with the scent of flowers. The girl was humming.

"I got a surprise for you that will make you happy," Goldie was beaming. He winked at Stewart. "Look! He put a legal-looking document on the table before her. "Read it, Consuelo, and say what it sounds like to you."

The girl continued to brush her hair.

"Oh, now I can't be bothered with such a thing. You tell me about it!" "These women, you can't beat 'em!" Goldie sighed. "It's your contract for next season!" he said in the same tone in which the cock announces the dawn.

A MARVEL

LAST EVENING I sat West, with three ladies whom I have no permission to name, when the following marvel appeared. Neither side was vulnerable. Rarely indeed is it possible to make a slam against any opening bid. It is usually impossible even to go game against a legitimate opening forcing bid. Had we not been unduly forced neither my partner or I would have ventured to bid so high. The result was astonishing.

Bidding went: South, 3-Diamonds, asking for partner to show Aces, West, 4-Spades, expecting to save game at non-prohibitive expense. South, 5-Hearts; East, 5-Spades; North, 6-Hearts; West, 6-Spades; South, 7-Hearts; East, 7-Spades; South doubled, ending the bidding with my hope not to go down too much.

up with me. They'll be the best Follies that Goldberg ever put on and you will be the biggest star. Look once at the contract. It runs into four figures a week. You sign it quick and then you won't have to do no more worrying about next year."

Consuelo began to brush her hair again.

Stewart got up and came behind her chair. He put his hands on her shoulders.

"Goldie isn't trying to put anything over on you, dear. We wrote this out together and it is as good as we could make it. You see, gypsy girl, I've reserved your marble palace for you for another year."

After a moment she patted his hands.

"You are a darling to do that for me."

"Sign it, dear, and I'll explain it to you afterward if you want. Of course, if there's anything you'd like to talk over or anything special—"

"No—no—I just hadn't thought of next year—not yet!"

"Gypsy!" he accused. "Next year too far away to think about! That certainly is a gypsy for you. Before you know it next year will be gone."

"I kissed the top of her head. 'My adorable gypsy!' I'll do your worrying and your planning for you, and then you won't have to bother at all. I'm glad I didn't lose you."

"Tish-tish, so public with me here," Goldie interrupted. He took out his fountain pen and unscrewed it.

"Now, gypsy, if you will stop loving long enough to sign this I will go along and you will get ready or I shall have to order this man out of your dressing room." His round eyes were twinkling and all the time he was wagging the fountain pen in front of her.

For an instant the girl closed her eyes. Then she reached up, took the pen, signed on the line Goldie was pointing out.

"Oh, what a smart one I am! Here the show has yet six weeks to go and I have already signed her for another season!" He chuckled to himself, folded up the contract, beamed on Consuelo and left the room.

The gypsy continued to brush her hair.

"You don't seem very happy about it. Aren't you glad about holding onto the marble palace?" Stewart asked.

She did not answer. To herself she was saying, I must not think. I must not. Next year! Another year and already I am sick inside with loneliness.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

AT THE CLIFTONA

Sabers flashing in the white sun, horses frothing and foaming from the noonday heat, thundering hoofs pounding out a furious rhythm as the cavalry charged.

It's all part of the impressive equestrian show, staged on location at Calabassas by director Mamoulian for Samuel Goldwyn's presentation of "We Live Again," showing tonight and Thursday at the Cliftona Theatre.

Frederic March, who shares stellar honors with Anna Sten in the film, rode at the head of three hundred picked riders, many of them former officers of the Imperial Cavalry Corps or Cossack troopers. The scene was based on a descriptive passage illustrating Prince Dmitri's wild and reckless life as a military student in Leo Tolstoy's novel, "Resurrection," from which the picture, which is released through United Artists, was adapted.

AT THE CIRCLE

The stage, always a prolific source of screen material, has yielded yet another nugget in "The Nut Farm," an amusing travesty on the promotional activities of unscrupulous motion picture producers, which is showing at the Circle Theatre last night tonight.

The new Monogram film, in its stage version, enjoyed a successful run of 41 weeks in New York and Chicago. It was purchased by the motion picture company at the instigation of Wallace Ford, who created the stage role and believed that the play contained good screen material. His confidence was justified by the reception accorded the film by critics.

Written by John C. Brownell, prominent playwright, the play was adapted for the screen by George Waggner and directed by Melville Brown.

In addition to Ford, the cast includes Florence Roberts, Betty Alden, Oscar Apfel, Joan Gale, Spencer Charters, Arnold Gray, Lorin Raker and Bradley Page.

WOMAN OF CHARM

(Wilmington News-Journal)

A woman, who holds herself up as an authority on female charm, set out a series of requisites for the "perfect lady of 1935."

This "perfect lady" brings nothing new to what always has been considered the essentials of the ideal female. There is nothing new in pointing out the "perfect lady" of the current twelvemonth should be fastidious in her morals as well as her physical appearance, that she should avoid vulgarity and have the lowly as when conversing with the world's mighties.

All this has the ring of the doctrines Christianity has been trying to inculcate through the ages. To be clean of soul as well as body, to avoid vulgarity, to be equally kind in word and manner to all one's fellows will indeed make a woman charming in any time and age.

The authority on female charm has simply taken a page out of the Good Book. All of her suggestions are but the outward graces of the charm of a truly Christian woman. And that charm will be just as alluring a century hence as during the present year of grace.

Comparing Various Ways Of Reducing the Weight

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

EVERY OTHER person you meet has a favorite way of reducing. There are those who drink three glasses of Vichy water one day and three glasses of Kissingen water the next day.

There are those who believe in hot baths. There are those who believe in hot baths with salt in them. There are those who believe in rubbing apparatus.

Some after their faith to grapefruit; some to milk and bananas.

The most advanced medical opinion on the subject, however, can be seen from the title of an article in a well-known medical journal, "Obesity Treatment by Diet, Thyroid and Dinitrophenol." One can interpret this to mean that only by diet and the use of one or two of these drugs is reduction in weight possible. Even exercise is left out.

I thoroughly agree with the general thesis. I do not believe that baths, massage, rubbing, or any special food will reduce weight. Exercise alone may keep weight even, but for reduction purposes it offers no creative extra appetite to checkmate its benefits.

Before summarizing the results, it may be useful to explain that thyroid is the extract from the thyroid gland which increases the general energy exchange of the body, increases the heat of the body and burns up tissue.

Dinitrophenol is a drug which was discovered to have the same properties, a few years ago. It was used very enthusiastically in weight reduction for a while, but is attended by many dangers and, in general, today is not used by conservative physicians. It is possible, however, that this neglect is unjustified, and that in careful hands dinitrophenol will be found to be a great benefit in this class of cases. It exerts its influence in the same way as thyroid, by increasing the heat of the body and destroying tissue. The patients perspire excessively and usually run a temperature while taking it.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Bill Games Booked

Dave Steinhauer, "kingfish" of the high school baseball team, today had listed seven tentative dates for the diamond nine beginning Thursday afternoon when Washington-two's team is scheduled to play on the Utilities field.

Other games according to Steinhauer's schedule are:
May 6: Stoutsville, there.
May 7: Pickaway, here.
May 7: Washington, there.
May 15: Bexley, there.
May 28: Pickaway, there.
May 30 (Memorial Day), Columbus, here.

Bob Logan's Turn

The American association race didn't get any easier for seven years Tuesday when Brooklyn Dodgers returned Lefty Bob Logan to Indianapolis. The southpaw went up for a trial but was not quite up to snuff with the veteran left-hander, Clark, returning to form. Logan has always been plenty tough in the association—Cincinnati has released Joe Morrissey, former St. Paul star, to Toronto.

Fight Card Ready

Norman Aronson, who is sponsoring an amateur fight card at Seippa park Thursday evening, is hoping for fair weather and a good attendance—His officials will be Cum Robinson and Earl "Riley" Hussey with Big Bill Pickens as the announcer—Aronson was out at 10:30 Tuesday evening tucking his pugs into bed and checking up on Solly McNeal to be sure the main bout was remaining on the straight and narrow.

Davis With Feeds

Merle Davis, whose services were claimed by three softball teams, will perform for the Eshelman Feeds, and don't be surprised if Bill Hegele doesn't chuck them over for the Feeds although the Cities Service squad claims him—Bill may get a steady job at the milling company and the Cities Service management would not step in his path if it meant work in exchange for ball playing.

CAN THIS TEAM BEAT THOSE IOWA RELAY RUNNERS?

Johnson

Lattimer

Maniaci

Winners of the quarter-mile college relay championship during the Penn relays in Philadelphia, this Columbia university team has high honors to defend. A match between Columbia and the University of Iowa team that set two world records this spring has been urged. Let to right, the Columbians are Johnson, Potter, Lattimer and Maniaci, the latter also a football star.

Another Terry Cast-off Wins for Dodger Team

NEW YORK, May 1.—Bill Terry's trades, like Mother Carey's chickens, always come home to roost.

A year ago Terry obtained Lefty Bill Clark from the Dodgers for a song. Then he gave him back for something less than a croon. Today he's willing to give an aria for him.

Last fall when the Dodgers were busily engaged in knocking the Giants out of a pennant, Terry was figuring on paying somebody to take Clark off his hands. Today Terry is wondering why he didn't have just a little more patience.

For yesterday the Dodgers started in where they left off last fall and their bete noire, as we say on Park Avenue, was that same Bill Clark.

Fitzsimmons Routed
Lefty set the Giants down, 12 to 5, in the first meeting of the transatlantic rivalry while the Dodgers routed fat Freddy Fitzsimmons, long a Dodger nemesis, under a six-run barrage in the third heat.

Of course, all this was duly appreciated by the most rabid fans on earth—the same being those who root for the Dodgers, and if Bill Terry's cars didn't burn it must be only because they're made of asbestos.

STOUTSVILLE WINS

Stoutsville high school's baseball team continued its travel toward the Fairfield co title Tuesday defeating Millerport, 10 to 7, on the latter diamond.

Aldenderfer twirled for the winners and Hartman for the losers. This afternoon the team meets Rushville and Thursday Pleasantville is on the schedule.

YANK BOSS ILL

NEW YORK, May 1.—Joe McCarthy, Yankee pilot, is in bed at his home here, suffering a severe cold contracted during the last game in Boston. He has been ill since. His physicians are guarding against the threat of pneumonia. Art Fletcher is running the team in his absence.

Decision Made as Chance Sun Runs Far Back in Preparedness Event.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 1.—Chance Sun, the winter book favorite and only entry of Joseph E. Widener in the Kentucky derby, will not run in Saturday's classic due to lameness, it was announced today.

Widener announced his decision and said the colt will be shipped today to his Elmendorf farm at Lexington.

Chance Sun, winner of last year's Belmont futurity, finished seventh in the preparation mile yesterday. The Widener colt showed his first sign of lameness last Saturday when he finished third behind Nellie flag and Bluebeard.

While they were getting ready to send Chance Sun away most of the leading candidates took their last hard workouts today. An early workout was scheduled to Col. E. R. Bradley's Boxthorn, with the big son of Blue Larkspur assigned to go the mile and a quarter derby route.

Today, the favorite, likewise had his early morning chores cut out for him with the derby route the probable assignment. Others to be asked for a show of top speed today were Plat Eye, Omaha, Roman Soldier, Commonwealth, Sun Fairplay, Chance View and St. Bernard.

ULRICH IN FORM

COLUMBUS, May 1.—Behind the four hit hurling of Marvin Ulrich, the Scarlet and Gray nine of Ohio State yesterday downed the Ohio U. Bobcats for the second time this season by a 4 to 1 score.

Joe Vittorella, Cat third baseman, was the only Ohio U. player able to solve Ulrich's deliveries. He obtained three of the visitors' four singles. The Bobcats tallied their lone marker in the third inning when Vittorella singled and Bobby Blue, Buck center fielder, made a three base muff of Bill Schmidt's long fly. The big Red overcame this in the sixth inning with a scoring splurge that netted them four runs and the ball game.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Bill Terry's trades, like Mother Carey's chickens, always come home to roost.

As a ball game, it was something for the fans in Podunk—or Brooklyn—to rave about. Actually, it was something sour enough to make old timers wriggle in their graves. There were at least seven official errors of varying dimensions and a few others that might have been charged.

But the Dodger fans were satisfied not to say elated, and today Lefty Clark, an erstwhile washed-up cripple, is boasting of three straight victories.

Those surprising Reds continued to shock the good burghers in Redland by knocking off the Cardinals, 12 to 2, and are for the moment safely ensconced in the first division. A young man Yclept Schott shot the champions from under their chapeau, yielding no more than five puny hits while his buddies pounded Haines and Hallahan in two big juicy innings.

Relief Worker Sees His Clients

An Intimate Account of the Problems Met by a Waiting Room Attendant as Thousands Descend Upon Him for Aid

WHAT HAS relief done for you? How do the people on relief regard the visitors and the waiting room attendants? What do they ask of? Do they get what they ask for? What is waiting room like? With what problems do the relief workers have to cope?

The answers to these questions are interesting. Few generalities can be made. Each client has different problems requiring different handling.

People on relief may be divided into three groups.

One group makes few demands and keeps striving for jobs.

Middle Group Largest

A large middle group exists. These people have lost their morale their ambitions are dimmed and their value as future workers is practically nil.

A comparatively small group is composed of those who either cannot work or won't work, such as the neurotics, borderline cases, invalids and members of the unemployed councils.

Relief has provided all of these groups with the necessities of life. This includes food, clothing, bedding, lighting, coal, coal oil, stoves, mechanical appliances and cartage.

Medicine Provided

Medicine is provided by the various hospitals and medical care by the hospitals and city doctors.

Relief workers try to inject as much of the human element into their work as is feasible. They try not to allow the job to descend to a purely mechanical level.

The family welfare work we do is perhaps of as much value to the clients as the relief that they receive. It is often helpful to a family trying to clarify some domestic situation.

Advice is offered but never forced upon anyone.

Attitude of Clients

The attitudes of the clients toward the workers are as varied as the individuals themselves. Some are surly, a few are pleasant, some friendly, others belligerent.

All the reactions that human beings are capable of are exhibited by the clients. Watch them come into a relief district waiting room.

Clients may come there for engagements with the visitor, to leave messages or to register complaints.

Throughout one day the man behind the desk in a waiting room is subjected to threats, troubles, hysterical clients, neurotic clients, nebrates, Communists, etc.

Many of the clients cannot speak English well. The first may be an Hungarian. His face is pleasant, but even before he begins talking he shakes a short, but clean, finger at the worker.

He requests coal and tells the worker he was asked for three days ago. He blusters and rages a bit, but his rage is not genuine.

As a Relief Worker Sees His Clients

An Intimate Account of the Problems Met by a Waiting Room Attendant as Thousands Descend Upon Him for Aid

WHAT HAS relief done for people? How do the people on relief regard the visitors and the waiting room attendants? What do they ask for? Do they get what they ask for? What is waiting room like? With what problems do the relief workers have to cope?

The answers to these questions are interesting. Few generalities can be made. Each client has different problems requiring different handling.

People on relief may be divided into three groups.

One group makes few demands and keeps striving for jobs.

Middle Group Largest

A large middle group exists. These people have lost their morale their ambitions are dimmed and their value as future workers is practically nil.

A comparatively small group is composed of those who either cannot work or won't work, such as the neurotics, borderline cases, invalids and members of the unemployed councils.

Relief has provided all of these groups with the necessities of life. This includes food, clothing, bedding, heating, coal, coal oil, stoves, mechanical appliances and care.

Medicine Provided

Medicine is provided by the various hospitals and medical care by the hospitals and city doctors.

Relief workers try to inject as much of the human element into their work as is feasible. They try not to allow the job to descend to a purely mechanical level.

The family welfare work we do is perhaps of as much value to the clients as the relief that they receive. It is often helpful to a family trying to clarify some domestic situation.

Advice is offered but never forced upon anyone.

Attitude of Clients

The attitudes of the clients toward the workers are as varied as the individuals themselves. Some are surly, a few are pleasant, some friendly, others belligerent, some are trusting, many distrustful. All the reactions that human beings are capable of are exhibited by the clients. Watch them come into a relief district waiting room.

Clients may come there for engagements with the visitor, to leave messages or to register complaints.

Throughout one day the man behind the desk in a waiting room is subjected to threats, troubles, hysterical clients, neurotic clients, neurotics, Communists, etc.

Many of the clients cannot speak English well. The first may be an Hungarian. His face is pleasant, but even before he begins talking he shakes a short, but clean, finger at the worker.

He requests coal and tells the worker is asked for three days ago. He blusters and rages a bit, but his rage is not genuine.

He requests coal and tells the worker is asked for three days ago. He blusters and rages a bit, but his rage is not genuine.

Throughout the day the relief worker is subjected to threats, hysterical clients, inebrates, Communists.

The worker asks about his sick child, calms him down.

Effect is "Miraculous"

The effect is miraculous. A troubled look appears on Mr. X's face. He pours out a sad story in broken English.

Meanwhile the worker has checked on the order and finds it is due at the client's house that morning. Mr. X departs smiling after thanking "Mister".

A little girl on her way to school comes in. Her request for shoes is sent to the visitor who will send out the requisition.

A member of the unemployed council enters, threatening physical violence to the worker if his request is not fulfilled.

Request Viewed as Absurd

The worker knows his request for a typewriter is absurd and tells the client the visitor will discuss his request with him. The client is satisfied because he has been given some attention.

Next comes a small but near appearing woman who immediately apologizes for coming to the office. Her effusive attitude of humility characterizes her as the member of a certain religious sect.

She is distinctly emotional and subject to religious hysteria. "When I sell my house," she says, "I will remember each person in this office with something nice."

A short, pale, unshaven man wants carfare to go to jail to visit his son. The worker allows him to use his car pass since tickets cannot be given for this purpose.

This man's wife instigates the violent moods exhibited by her husband, who has become a strict child, calms him down.

A towheaded Hungarian enters. He is steeped in old country customs. He doesn't believe in the equality of woman.

He explains, "A man is a man. He cannot be cut in two. Give me then one check and I take some of it to my wife. Man should boss woman. Why, please, do they send one check to me and one to her?"

A Formal Farewell

Leaving, he shakes hands with the worker and calls him by his first name.

Next, a woman—large, dirty, and violent, enters. She offers information concerning a family that spends its relief cash for a typewriter. She finishes her story by saying that even now the woman is lying drunk beneath a stairway insufficiently dressed.

At least part of the story is corroborated upon investigation.

And still they come; the young, old, friendly, belligerent, neurotic, drug addicts, some who can smile a little, others who bristle at the slightest suggestion of a smile and still other who boast that they've been on relief for four years and won't work even if they can get a job.

Last Person to Cross Aqueduct Recalls Fire

The destruction of the giant covered bridge spanning the Scioto river, west of the city, back in 1881, as vividly described by Pat Kirwin in his "Did You Know?" column in a recent issue of The Herald, brought back memories of the big fire to Jack Campbell, Circleville resident, who was the last person to cross the bridge before it went up in smoke.

"Yes, I remember that fire just as well as if it happened yesterday," said Mr. Campbell when interviewed by a Herald reporter. "Although I was the last man to cross the bridge, I did not see the big fire and did not know that the bridge had been destroyed until several hours later," continued Mr. Campbell.

The keen eyes of this 84-year-old Circleville resident twinkled merrily as he looked out the window at his home at 603 N. Court-st., and his mind went back to an early Sunday morning, March 20, 1881, when he urged his driving horse through the dark tunnel of the bridge, out on the other side of the river, and home to bed, little knowing that behind him the spark that fired the structure was making rapid headway.

Tells of Incident
"I read that story in The Herald," continued Mr. Campbell as he loosened the folds of memory, "and it was all correct with the exception of the opinion that the fire was believed to have started from a carelessly-thrown cigar stump. No cigar stump ever set that bridge on fire, according to my belief. I think it was purposely set on fire, and I'll tell you why."

Mr. Campbell eased himself into a comfortable position in his arm chair and enlightened the reporter as to his recollections of the big fire.

"We lived at that time on a 400-acre farm later owned by the McCarty heirs, on the Darbyville pike about four miles from Circleville. I came to town on Saturday night, as usual, and it was probably 1 o'clock Sunday morning before I started home. I had stabled my driving horse at the Albough livery barn, and was with some friends until quite late. Finally I got started home, and when I rounded the curve at the east approach of the big bridge I saw a flicker of light inside, then it went out. It was as dark as could be inside the bridge, as it was enclosed clear to the top, and all one could see was a little spot of light at the west end. When I saw the flash of light, I thought perhaps it was someone inside the bridge with a dark lantern, but I kept right on. As I approached

"THAT'S NOT ME," SAYS MAE WEST

Mae West

Mae West, screen actress, is pictured above, in Los Angeles as she denied the fact that she married Frank Wallace, stage actor, in 1911. Shown a picture of the point where I had seen the light, there came another flash that went almost across the floor of the north side of the driveway, and still it never occurred to me that the bridge was on fire. When I passed the spot there was no light to be seen, so I went on home, not thinking much about it.

Wasn't Afraid
"I wasn't one bit excited. From the time I was three years old I had been taught not to be afraid in darkness, and I had passed through that old bridge many a night when it was so dark I couldn't see anything. After I arrived home I slept a few hours and soon after getting up Sunday morning the toll-gate keeper, Ashton Briggs, came to our house and told us that the old covered bridge had burned. Right away it came to me that the old bridge was on fire as I came through it, but the blaze had not made much headway. It would flash up and across the flooring at the middle pier, then die down again. If I had stopped to investigate I presume I might have saved the bridge.

"There was never much of any investigation about the origin of the fire as people generally were glad the old bridge was destroyed. Many people were afraid to drive through it after night, but I do not recall any particular reason for such fear, as I never knew of anyone having been held up or molested in any way. But it was a mighty dark place. It was almost 700 feet long.

Was Set on Fire
"I don't believe the fire was accidental. I think somebody started a blaze on the middle pier with the intention of destroying the bridge. I never believed it possible for a blaze to start from a cigar stump, unless helped along by some highly inflammable material, and there was nothing around the bridge except heavy timbers.

Another Experience
"I recall one experience I had

when I was about 20 years old. I was returning home from town on horseback. The stars were shining brightly although there was no moon, and when I reached Hulse school house I noticed three men lying on the ground near the building. As I approached, two of them arose, walked into the road and stood about three feet apart on my side of the road. It looked to me as though they were up to mischief, so I held the reins tightly in one hand, grasped the saddle horn with the other, and just about the time I reached the men I spurred the horse and he leaped through the gap between them. Both men grabbed for the bridge, but they were too late. I went on home and was not further molested."

Mr. Campbell chuckled merrily while he was reminiscing and related quite a number of experiences of the early days in and around Circleville. He is 84 years

Cultivation

QUITE OFTEN the difference between a fine garden and an ordinary one is in the method of fertilization. Too much is almost as bad as too little fertilizer. Several light applications thoroughly worked in are preferable to one heavy treatment.

CULTIVATE your garden as soon as possible after a heavy rain. The water packs down the surface soil which then becomes crusted and cracked in the hot sun.

MANY PLANT difficulties may be readily overcome with proper fertilization. Plants that are kept growing continuously are much harder and less susceptible to disease.

LIME is not a plant food. Its value is in correcting a sour or acid soil condition and in making clayey soils looser and more pliable.

REGARD your flower garden as an additional room in your home. Its treatment as an outdoor living room will make it the most enjoyable portion of your home.

MAKE the care of your garden a part of the day's routine. A few moments each day will then be sufficient.

IF YOU have trees or heavy shrubs or bushes close to your garden, it is necessary to fertilize more often for these stronger growing plants will take the substance that should be available to your tenderer annuals or perennials.

FROGS or toads, hornets, garden spiders, dragon flies, are some of the desirable friends in your garden for they feed on both the adults and the larvae of harmful forms.

IF YOU have a steep slope where it is difficult to get grass, try planting thickly with honey-suckle.

IN PLANNING the planting for the front of the house, consider your neighbors. The effectiveness is doubled if it is in harmony with the others.

WOODLAND TREES get along without fertilizer but lawn trees must compete with the greedy grass and should be fertilized. Bone Meal or a good tree and shrub fertilizer should be used.

but the blaze had not made much headway. It would flash up and across the flooring at the middle pier, then die down again. If I had stopped to investigate I presume I might have saved the bridge.

"There was never much of any investigation about the origin of the fire as people generally were glad the old bridge was destroyed. Many people were afraid to drive through it after night, but I do not recall any particular reason for such fear, as I never knew of anyone having been held up or molested in any way. But it was a mighty dark place. It was almost 700 feet long.

Was Set on Fire

"I don't believe the fire was accidental. I think somebody started a blaze on the middle pier with the intention of destroying the bridge. I never believed it possible for a blaze to start from a cigar stump, unless helped along by some highly inflammable material, and there was nothing around the bridge except heavy timbers.

"At the time of the fire I was 30 years old, and living with my father on the farm. I passed through the bridge frequently, and I remember that I used to hold my buggy whip out on the right side to locate the upright timbers. In order to know that I was driving straight through, I also remember one night that my horse refused to go any farther, and no amount of urging would induce him to take another step. I got out of the buggy to find out what was the matter, and after striking a few matches I found horse and buggy crossovers of the bridge, and the horse's head was against the middle wall.

Another Experience

"I recall one experience I had

when I was about 20 years old. I was returning home from town on horseback. The stars were shining brightly although there was no moon, and when I reached Hulse school house I noticed three men lying on the ground near the building. As I approached, two of them arose, walked into the road and stood about three feet apart on my side of the road. It looked to me as though they were up to mischief, so I held the reins tightly in one hand, grasped the saddle horn with the other, and just about the time I reached the men I spurred the horse and he leaped through the gap between them. Both men grabbed for the bridle, but they were too late. I went on home and was not further molested."

Mr. Campbell chuckled merrily while he was reminiscing and related quite a number of experiences of the early days in and around Circleville. He is 84 years

Cultivation

QUITE OFTEN the difference between a fine garden and an ordinary one is in the method of fertilization. Too much is almost as bad as too little fertilizer. Several light applications thoroughly worked in are preferable to one heavy treatment.

CULTIVATE your garden as soon as possible after a heavy rain. The water packs down the surface soil which then becomes crusted and cracked in the hot sun.

MANY PLANT difficulties may be readily overcome with proper fertilization. Plants that are kept growing continuously are much harder and less susceptible to disease.

LIME is not a plant food. Its value is in correcting a sour or acid soil condition and in making clayey soils looser and more pliable.

REGARD your flower garden as an additional room in your home. Its treatment as an outdoor living room will make it the most enjoyable portion of your home.

MAKE the care of your garden a part of the day's routine. A few moments each day will then be sufficient.

IF YOU have trees or heavy shrubs or bushes close to your garden, it is necessary to fertilize more often for these stronger growing plants will take the sustenance that should be available to your tenderer annuals or perennials.

FROGS or toads, hornets, garden spiders, dragon flies, are some of the desirable friends in your garden for they feed on both the adults and the larvae of harmful forms.

IF YOU have a steep slope where it is difficult to get grass, try planting thickly with honey-suckle.

IN PLANNING the planting for the front of the house, consider your neighbors. The effectiveness is doubled if it is in harmony with the others.

WOODLAND TREES get along without fertilizer but lawn trees must compete with the greedy grass and should be fertilized. Bone Meal or a good tree and shrub fertilizer should be used.
